

THOMAS K. CLANCY

Research Professor of Law and Director, National Center for Justice and the Rule of Law
The University of Mississippi School of Law

Thomas K. Clancy is a nationally recognized expert on the Fourth Amendment and Cyber Crime. He frequently organizes and lectures at judicial and other conferences on those subjects. Clancy has written more than 20 articles on the Fourth Amendment (available at: <http://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/displayabstractsearch.cfm>) and is author of two books, both now or soon to be in their second edition: Cyber Crime and Digital Evidence (Lexis Nexis – 2d ed. forthcoming 2014) and The Fourth Amendment: Its History and Interpretation (Carolina Academic Press – 2d ed. 2014). In his more than 30 years of legal experience, Clancy has evenly split his time between academics and practice. He has taught at seven law schools in a variety of capacities, including as Director, National Center for Justice and the Rule of Law and Research Professor, University of Mississippi School of Law from 2001-14. Clancy practiced criminal law in Washington DC and Maryland. He served as Chief of the Post Conviction Unit in the State's Attorney's Office for Prince George's County, Maryland, as an Assistant Attorney General for the State of Maryland in the Criminal Appeals Division, and in private practice. He has briefed and argued over 900 criminal appeals cases. Professor Clancy is a cum laude graduate of Vermont Law School and received his B.A. from the University of Notre Dame. Contact information: clancy.thomas.k@gmail.com.